

Socio-legal support for migrant people in Melilla and Advocacy at the Spanish Southern border

This project aims to improve living conditions and rights protection for migrant people in Melilla, Spain's southern border. Over 17 months, it will combine socio-legal assistance, awareness campaigns, and advocacy to combat racism and promote equality.

Beneficiaries include migrants, asylum seekers, women, minors, and local civil society. Activities include legal accompaniment, rights training, publications on social media and collaborative advocacy with institutions and NGOs. The project strengthens legal empowerment, institutional accountability, and civil society engagement toward a rights-based migration governance framework.
